

decided to walk back to the Botrange, they were no cowards and could even handle that walk!

Yes, they did! After a short walk of about 9 km they reached the highest point of the Ardennes where, after a lunch, we were picked up by the coaches.

Thanking all the participants for 2 enjoyable days, we specially want to thank the Abat Escarre members for helping us getting all the participants to the new field and the Belgium Stef and Peter for assisting us in the French language.

REPORT OF THE DUTCH TREAT.

Martin Beltjens, Chief editor of THE MARSNA TELEGRAPH, went on the trip to Zaanse schans to bring a live report. To get a complete story he also walked through Volendam.

So how did you like your trip?

- mja, mja, mja, mja.

AHA! You thought it was a nice journey in a luxurious bus. And did you have nice weather?

- mja, mja, mja, mja.

So it was good weather but with some drops of rain occasionally. And What did you think of Volendam?

- mja, mja, mja, mja.

You say it is very similar to Valkenburg. And what did you like about these places?

- mja, mja, mja, mja.

You like the Windmills because they are so impressive.

Thank you Martin for the interview!!

REPORT OF THE CUTTING OF A SHY BLISTER.

Kerstin Strionski, a Belgian scout, tried to cut open a very big and shy blister. Every time someone took a look at it, it blushed. Because it is very lonely, she is anxiously looking for a mate to keep her blister company.

Her shoe size is about 38 and she is very sweet. Teo please react !!!!!!!!!!!!!!!.

CATALONIAN GAMES.

Yesterday evening Catalonian leaders played a game trying to scare their scouts. The story goes as follows: Three prisoners escaped from a prison nearby and police suspect that they are in the area around the camp.

The only trouble was that nobody believed it.

RECEPTION TIME.

The Turkish group yesterday organised a reception. Lots of delicious food was prepared by the Turkish leaders and scouts. We asked one of our reporters about his opinion.

Martin, did you like the food?

- mja, mja, mja, mja.

So the food and the atmosphere were good, and what about the served drinks?

- mjam, mjam, mjam, mjam.

I shall give no comments on these remarks, it is quite clear what you think about yesterday evening.

Thank you Martin for these interesting comments.

REPORT OF THE TWO DAY HIKE.

Peter, one of the Dutch service crew, was woken up by one of the four little GREEK gods, who thought that he was a certain Belgian scout called Kerstin. Peter reports that he did not like it. (to be continued on the other page)

STAFF REPORT ON THE TWO-DAY HIKE.

First, congratulations to all participants for the efforts during these two days. Because of the weather it wasn't the most easiest tour one could think of, but fortunately we got all the people in. We will not mention that we had to drive a group home, including a leader who was hurt in his pride that his wife had beaten him!

After reaching the place-to-stay and building our own shelter we were 'surprised' by heavy rains which caused a steadily filled food-can. In spite that everybody survived the tough hike we decided to look for a solid roof and it turned out that we were sleeping in a barn filled with all kind of equipment. So we were sleeping in, under and up the machinery; but it was dry while we and our clothes were soaked wet. After a considerably well nights' sleep and a staffmeeting the participants
